

B U S I N E S S V O I C E

Vol. 7, No. 10

November 2004

“He has been instrumental in fighting for reasonable environmental standards.”

HIGHLIGHTS

	Page
Diesel Fuel Tax Proposed	2
Antibusiness Bills Clear Labor Committee	3
President Signs $13.7B Tax Cut	3
Meet Our Members: Edd Hogan	4
NJBIA Site Visit: Air Cruisers of Belmar	5
Election Round-up	6
Awards for Excellence Dinner Photos	7
Calendar of Events	8

Meet Our Members

A periodic profile of the people who make NJBIA the State's premier business association.

Edd Hogan
Environmental Partner
Norris, McLaughlin,
& Marcus

Few members of NJBIA's Environmental Quality Committee would be surprised to learn that Edd Hogan has been listed in the Environmental Law section of the Best Lawyers in America since 1993.

For the last 16 years, Hogan has commented on virtually every State environmental proposal to come down the pike, providing insightful analysis on everything from the Industrial Site Remediation Act (ISRA) to natural resources damages.

As a member of the law firm of Norris, McLaughlin and Marcus, Edd has been sailing the turbulent waters of New Jersey environmental law for some time. And the members of NJBIA have been the beneficiaries of his expertise.

Edd offers his expert analysis on proposed legislation and NJ Department of Environmental Protection regulations, giving NJBIA the information it needs to protect the business community's interests.

He is also a regular speaker at NJBIA seminars, offering members practical advice on compliance with the Clean Water Enforcement Act, Industrial Site Remediation Act and underground-storage-tank-removal laws. He was also instrumental in helping to educate NJBIA members on the basics of environmental law through the Environment 101 seminar.

“I became involved with NJBIA because of the interaction between other business leaders and policymakers,” Hogan explained. “The thing I enjoy most about NJBIA is working with others who share the common goal of advancing and making New Jersey a better place to live and work.”

“Edd Hogan has helped many businesses that have no idea he even exists,” said NJBIA First Vice President Jim Sinclair, who handles environmental issues. “He has been instrumental in fighting for reasonable environmental standards based on sound science.”

Hogan has been a member of the Environmental Quality Committee for 16 years, serving as chairman from 2001 to 2003.